

Call for papers

Contributions are invited for *Hieronymus – Journal of Translation Studies and Terminology*.

Hieronymus is the first Croatian journal dedicated exclusively to publishing research and professional articles in the field of translation studies and terminology. The journal has the following key goals: (1) to promote translation studies and terminology in Croatia and the broader region, where these two disciplines are not always recognized; and (2) to enhance local researchers' visibility in the international translation studies community.

For the Research section of the journal, we welcome empirical studies with clear goals and well-defined methodology in any area of translation studies or terminology. In addition, papers presenting and discussing any area of professional translation or terminological practice are invited for the Professional section.

Contributions by early career researchers (pre-Ph.D. or recently obtaining a Ph.D.) as well as young professionals are gladly accepted.

In both sections of the journal, contributors from Croatia and the broader region are particularly welcome, in line with the journal's mission outlined above.

The preferred languages are English and Croatian.

We accept submissions throughout the year, but for consideration in our next issue (to be published in December), submissions need to be sent by 30 June at the latest.

Submissions will first be considered by the Editorial Team and, if they pass this initial screening, they will be forwarded for a double blind peer review.

Authors whose papers are accepted for publication must certify that their work has not been previously published. All papers are published in Open Access under the Creative Commons 4.0 open license.

For information on citation style and formatting, please consult our Contributors page and Submission Guidelines.
