The idea of this conference is to stimulate students' interest in research work, public presentation and discussion of topics that interest them during their studies. With this event students are given the opportunity to talk about their academic interests in front of colleagues, professors and interested philology fans. The initiative that was born as an idea in February 2015, has grown into a traditional event in which students, not only from the Faculty of Philology, but also from other faculties in the country and abroad participate. After the presentations, interesting discussions are always developed on current topics from all fields of philology.

The organizing team of the conference works voluntarily and tries to organize accompanying activities, lectures, workshops and informal gatherings.
